Further, far-fetched though the suggestion may appear, it is possible to see in Chaucer's duck the germ of his conception of the Merchant in the Cant. Tales; for the former presents an undeniable likeness to the worthy man who ful wel his wit besette and his reson spak ful solempnely, and who was so estatly of his governaunce, with his bargaynes, and with his chevisaunce (C. T. Prol. 274282). It may not be without significance that the duck uses the adjuration by myn hat. This reference to a hat, taken in connection with other matters, recalls the Merchant's Flaundrish bever hat (Prol 272), which was possibly a distinctive...
