Forward March! tis said, Like him who burned his ships, but more elate Great Sherman seems his all to fling on fate. Yet loud it thunders all along the shore, --God grant that soon the Cyclone may be o'er, Our ship is strong; a strong hand at the helm; A weaker heart the sea would overwhelm, And ours rides out the gale, because he threw The dead weight out the hull, as all must do, Who would win stable peace, and happy be--What State saves freemen must itself be wholly free! My soul like you, is tired of blood and war, Yet sees the nearing signs of Avatar, Like flaming sword suspended over them! Ere Caesar's Son came sweeping o'er Jerusalem. I hear the Mighty Wings rush to and fro; Death rides his horse, the Grave doth after go; The cannon-steeds sting with their scorpion tails; Their breath of fire, not stone, but iron hails, And bursting bombs in crowded city-street That spread wild havoc wilder curses meet, In China, India, isolate Japan Here--there, and all the world.so under ban; Both man and nature uttering horrid moans Unsealing all the Seven Thunders tones. Aye, aye, the Princely Powers of Air do rage, Knowing then-time is short when ends the age. The Moslem Prophet breathes his life away; Euphrates...
